Navigating The Post-Election Landscape as a Family-Inclusive Employer

As the UK reflects on the outcome and implications of the recent General Election, employers, working parents and carers alike are waiting and watching to see how a Labour Government will deliver on campaign promises. Our panel will weigh up:

- What are the implications for employers looking to provide effective and inclusive family policies?
- What does this shift in Government mean in real terms for both employers and workers?
- What do employers need to be aware of and prepared for in order to demonstrate best practice?
- Will current practices remain competitive in attracting and retaining talent as legislation advances?

Employee Reward, Benefits & Wellbeing 2024

Recent research has suggested backward moves for gender equity in the workplace. However, men are almost as likely as women to say they will consider childcare before accepting a new job or promotion. During this workshop, you will:

- Hear research-based insights and lived experience on the expectations of employees, across genders, on work-life balance and family life
- Gain real-world, practical tips to help fathers and parents of all genders achieve a successful work-family balance
- Take away action and advice you can apply for your own workforce
